

Cookbook mix on display Sunday at museum

Written by Wauneta Breeze

Thursday, 23 June 2011 14:47 -

Cookbooks from as far back as 100 years and newer ones will be part of the special display focus at the Chase County Museum in Champion this Sunday.

Several different cookbooks will be part of the display, including family cookbooks and others from churches and organizations. The Busybee Ladies Club of many years ago to the newer Gooseberry Patch cookbooks will be available for viewing.

Come taste and look just for fun.

Visitors to the museum Sunday can also take a look at the buildings filled from yesterday. Board members will be on hand to answer questions.

Sunday museum hours will be from 1 to 4 p.m.