The building between Veil's Unlimited and the Country Clipper on Wauneta's main street came down brick by brick recently. The modern bricks on the facade obscured the age of the building which was constructed in 1892 of bricks kilned in Wauneta of native clay. The building was known as the Krausnick Grocery Store and was home to several grocery businesses and others including a general store, a creamery station and later part of a large department store.

A new sign from Hot Brush Lettering in Bird City, Kan., was placed on the wall of BWTelcom's new building this week.

Marvin and Mary Emma Maris will observe their 50th anniversary on Dec. 27. Wauneta eighth grade students in Gary Goodchuck's social studies class have become stockbrokers — both pretend and for real — during their study of industrialized America. Students were each given a hypothetical $1,000 to “buy” into three corporations on the New York Stock Exchange. Students then charted their purchases for daily gains and losses. Students pooled $30 to actually purchase one share of AT&T stock, going through a McCook broker who spoke to the class. They plan to keep the stock for the next four years, splitting any profits when they graduate.

Esther Einspahr and Judy Evers hosted a Christmas coffee in the Einspahr home Saturday for friends and relatives.
